Final anrangements have been made for the greatest event of the school year by the members of the schoool committee and the Eldora Park management.

Burgess George W. Risbeck has asked his men to assist in the work of seeing that the children get on and off the cars in good shape. Committees have been appointed and today it was announced just where these committees would report.

Chief of Police C. W. Albright will be the chairman of a committee that will look after the loading of children at Second street at 8:45 o'clock. He is to be assisted there by W. R. Gaut, Dr. D. E. Sloan, K. W. Daly, J. D. Berryman, Burgess George W. Risbeck and Dr. J. W. Manon.

Patrolman James Murphy will be in charge of the work of loading at 8:45 o'clock at Ninth street, the committee to assist him to be Dr. J. K. Smith, John B. Schafer, W. H. Calvert, Oscar C. Linn, J. J. Hott and Dr. J. Clive Enos.

Six cars will be run from Fifth street at 9:30 o'clock to carry the children from the Crest avenue and Fifth street schools. Both Chief of Police Albright and Patrolman Murphy will be there. For the Crest avenue school the following committee is asked to aid: William Gelder, H. L. Swickey, C. W. Weltner, J. H. Bowers, W. C. Clark, W. F. Hennings, and Dr. J. B. Barth. Rev. Duty Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon to High School Class

OPPORTUNITIES MANY

Present Day Advantages for Youth of Land Declared to be Numerous

An audience composed from the congregations of nearly all of the Charleroi churches that completely filled the First Christian church listened to the baccalaureate sermon to the members of the Charleroi high school graduating class Sunday evening by Rev. E. N. Duty. Rev. Duty's subject was "The Diversity of Gifts." A well rounded program was carried out, of which music was a distinct feature.

Rev. Duty took for his text the verse, "But desire earnestly the grater gifts. And moreover a more excellent way show I unto you." from 1 Cor. 12:31. His keynote was service. This he said was to be attainable through love as the motive.

There is opportunity for the young people of today in all kinds of endeavor and it is due the young people according to grasp their opportunities according to the argument of Rev. Duty. Much thought should be given to the choice of a profession. In part Rev. Duty said:

"Make a thoughtful introspection and restrospection of your life that you may understand the adaptability for your choice Study your life and liking. I admonish you young people to know your life's vocation before entering upon your college or university career.

"Become in love with your work. To succeed you must be in love with your work. Love is the motive in choosing. The more excellent way is the way of love and if one chooses through this motive the greater gifts will be sought. Choose not because of financial renumeration but value your choice by the amount of service you can render unto humanity and unto your God. It is far better to work at some thing that not only gives you a livelihood, but serves and aids mankind. The great demand for today is for heriоc service.

"Having made our choice we must submit ourselves to our life's speciality. There is no turning back. Life time is preparation time. A symmetrical life is one of the greatest needs of the time. Man is his own architect and it is essential for him to play for a symmetrical life as the architect to plan for his building."

Rev. Duty paid attention to the physical development of a life, which he declared should be similiarly great to the mental development. He said he was an enthusiastist for physical culture, but stood above all for spiritual and soul-culture, which is the highest development. He repeated the famous poem by J. G. Holland which is a demand for liberty-loving, civic-spirited, broad-minded men.

In closing, Rev. Duty said: "Young ladies and gentlemen of this graduating class, this is your commencement. Look not upon it as the finishing of your life's preparation or work. It is your beginning. It is

FRANK ARRISON.

By the death of Frank Arrison Charleroi not only loses a young man of splendid attainments and a promising career, but the community is bereft of a life that was an example and an inspiration to right living on the part of all young men. While not a prodigy of unusually brilliant intellectual attainments that would mark him for distinction far above his fellows, he was a type of the modest and unassuming young man who lived cleanly, performed his everday duties unflinchingly, with a deep sense of obligation to his fellow men. This is the force that is needed above all others in advancing the progress of civilization and on which society must depend to work out its ultimate destiny.

Frank Arrison was what every young man ought to be—what every young man can be. He had character, integrity, a fine sense of honor and a deep appreciation of the obligations he owed to society and to his Creator. With the courage of his convictions he went ahead and did his duty as he saw it. Not of the goody-good type, he was nevertheless good in the sense that he did right for right's sake, and believed profoundly in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He was active in the interests of good citizenship, and stood for clean politics, and in that capacity performed a signal service for the community. It is this type of young men on which the regenration of society depends, and the attainments are within the reach of every high school boy who is starting out in his career. No matter what handicaps a young man may have, he can live cleanly, do his duty and aid in the promotion of good citizenship. With these attainments the door of opportunity is sure to open to him sooner or later.

CONVICTION AND COURAGE.

Boies Penrose, senior United States Senator from Pennsylvania, has overwhelmed his factional enemies by bringing his fixed convictions into the state and courageously declaring them to all the people. Senator Penrose is a firm believer in the principles and policies of the Republican party. He believes, as firmly as any man in America, that protection to the industries of the country means progress and prosperity to the wage-earner and the wage-payer alike. He believes that the sucess of his party is paramount to the advancement of any individual in it, and he relies on party organization to promote the principles and policies in which he so firmly believes.

In a speech before both the senate and the lower house at Harrisburg the other day Senator Penrose heartily congratulated the law-makers on their progress. He reviewed the laws now on the statute books and discussed the laws being made at the pending session, and he aroused a feeling of that sincere pride in the state which for the past several years has been trampled underfoot by those who would sacrifice party, prosperity and the best interests of the commonwealth for individual place and power.

Senator Penrose contended that party harmony means party success and the success of the Republican party, he argued, was the surest way to advance the material interests of this State and the nation. The Penrose visit to the Pennsylvania legislature gratified his friends and confounded those who would undo him politically at whatever cost to the state.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

When word was received the other day that Secretary McAdoo had ordered a change in the new nickel there was comment made in many quarters that a reform in the method of coin selection would be found generally beneficial, says the New York Sun. The change the secretary decided upon was the more clearly defining of the words "five cents," which he feared would become rubbed off in use and lead to confusion and perhaps loss.

It is a noteworthy fact that in the issuance of our money the design and the time and method of change are left to individuals. It is pointed out that in so important a matter as the choice and general manipulation of a nation's currency the selection should be left to the people themselves and not to the taste or the dictum of one or two officials.

In the past there has been a change in the currency almost with every chang in Administration. It has been either a new bill or a new coin. Little effort has been made to ascertain whether the people were dissatisfied with their money in whole or in part. When the head of the issuing department concluded it time to get busy with a new bill or a new coin the thing was done.

Take the case of the old nickel—the one in use before the current coin. There was nothing the matter with it But a new nickel was issued. The designers forgot to put the word "cents" on it It was promptly gilded and thousands were gulled into believing it a five dollar gold piece. It had to be changed and the word "cents" added. All this costs money, when the old nickel fulfilled every requirement.

The confidnce that goes with an undeviating quality of coinage is always a national blessing. All classes of people get used to a certain coin or bill and they feel a kinship with it.

The proposed issuance of new currency bill's of a different size from the present bills means a great deal of inconvenience for years. There will be two sizes of bills, and in rolling and carrying, compactness and ready counting will suffer. It will be a long time before the old bills will be replaced by the new, so that in effect the country will have to put up with all the di-advantages of a ort of double currency system.

CHARLEROI WINS GAME WITH EASE

Fayette Citians Swamped in Struggle at Ball Ground Saturday

FINAL SCORE 11 TO 2

The Charleroi Independents had no trouble swamping the Fayette City Independents on Saturday afternoon by the awful score of 11 to 2. Brightwell started to hurl for Fayette City and hurled for five innings and a part of the sixth when he walked with leaden footsteps from the box to give T. Parks a chance to get his benders and shoots slaughtered.

The scoring started in the very first inning, Mathers being the first person to tally. Three runs came in on as many hits. The fourth, fifth and sixth were scoring innings, and after that Charleroi quit, more for convenience to themselves than for any feeling for Fayette City.

In spite of the whaling big score there were bright features in the struggle. "Hooks" Urben pulled off a sensational play that would have done credit to any "Honus" Wagner or Ty Cobb. Brightwell banged the ball for what looked good for a hefty Texas leaguer over Urben's head. Urben awaited with anxiety the coming of the whizzer. Then making a high jump the equal of which was not seen in any of the Saturday field meets he stabbed the ball with his gloved left hand and stuck to it. Roll played a good game at third base, and at the bat was the best there was on the field. He manipulated three hits for a total of six bases, and each time brought in a run. The Charleroi team played well though the lineup was an unusual one. The core:

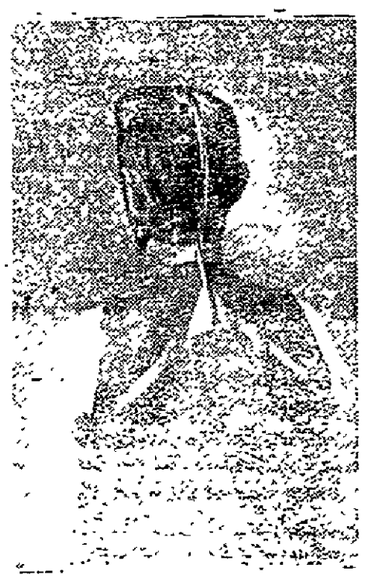
SOUSLIN SEEMS ALMOST TO HAVE CHARMED LIFE

Alonzo Souslin, of Dayton, O., who is probably the only man who travels, walks and talks with a broken neck, is in Charleroi this week. By means of what the surgeons call a jury mast Mr. Souslin is enabled to supply the place of the broken vertebrae, and in that manner is enabled to travel about [illegible] his [illegible] child, who are dependent upon him.

As previously stated Mr. Souslin, who is 52 years old has had a varied career, as well as more than his share of hard luck and the misfortunes that are the common lot of man.

He was born on a farm, was 12 years a railroad trainman, three years a sailor and has wrought as a boiler-



His Only Support.

maker, painter, decorator, carpenter, coal hauler and ditch-digger.

Once he had three ribs broken; later was afflicted with locomotar ataxit, typhoid fever, rupteure of sciatic nerves and right leg broken.

The culminating misfortune however, came on October 23, 1906, at Dayton, when a heavy plank fell on Mr. Souslin while he was at work and broke the vertebrae of his neck. Contrary to all precedent he lived, and by artificial support for his broken neck he has since been able to go about and support his family. There are probably few known cases in the civilized world where a man so terribly handicapped is performing a similar service and in this respect Mr. Souslin affords a striking example of fortitude and optimism.

Fishes Phone Their Presence.

A French inventor has taken out a patent for the catching of fish by means of the telephone. It is stated that fish, when swimming, emit certain sounds which can be detected by the telephone. The inventor's apparatus consists of a telephone receiver and a detonator, which are sunk in the water and connected by wires to a post of observation on the river bank. When fish in any number pass the receiver a sound is heard by the watcher, who has only to press a button to explode the detonator.

HOBO'S CLOSE SHAVE WHEN MRS. JONES GAVE UP

TRAMP ACKNOWLEDGES OWING LIFE TO SLIGHT MISHAP.

Had His Hat Not Blown Off at Just That Moment He Would Have Gone to Death With His Fellow Wanderer.

"I have had some very narrow escapes in my life," said the reformed hobo, "but none of them can hold a candle to one that happened down in Texas.

"It was the endup of a very strenuous week which began with a fire in a lodging house in San Antonio, where I had to get out with less than half of my then very scanty wardrobe. I had to get out of a window on the fourth floor at that, and the fire ladder was a trifle short. I had to hang by my hands from the window sill, and as I dropped a fireman caught me between the ladder and the building and then half carried me down to safety.

"Two days later I was one of the last they dug out from under the trucks and debris of a baggage car and with no bones broken and few bruises worth mentioning. The next day I got arrested for walking across a railroad bridge, but they let me go when I explained I wasn't trying to avoid paying toll on the highway bridge, but had to take the railroad bridge because I was broke.

"After being released I started out on foot until I came to a water tank. There I was hailed by another hobo, who happened to be a big black fellow, bigger I imagine than Jack Johnson. He said he was waiting for the blind baggage express, was going to ride the with him[illegible]ge and wanted me to go 60 miles before[illegible]company. It was full and I would be a[illegible]next stop, he said.

"It had cleared up[illegible]o walk. very heavy rain, but the[illegible]tle from a some very black clouds on[illegible]are still zon and it looked like another hori[illegible]to come later. I consented to wait f[illegible]the express, and shortly before it arrived at the tank the wind began to blow terribly. The express arrived and the black fellow made it all right, but my hat blew off in my rush to make the blind baggage and it was a case of losing the hat or the train and I chose the latter.

"The storm that broke loose a few minutes later was the worst I ever saw, and it lasted for half an hour. The water tank was no protection, so I got soaked through, and after the storm was over I started to walk the track. I was wet and cold and had to do it to keep from becoming completely numbed. The moon came up a little later in a clear sky.

"After I had walked about five miles in the moonlight my foottripped over something that gave me the horrors. It was the negro's body. He had undoubtedly been unable to retain his hold and had been blown off the train in the midst of that terrible storm. If my hat hadn't blown off as it did when I was about to join the negro on the blind baggage I certainly would have been blown to Kingdom Come, too."

She Knows Now, Though She Didn't Before, That Real Antique Lover Can Never Be Cured.

Beverly Jones had a passion for antiques and having money enough to indulge it, he spent his time haunting second hand furniture ships, where he managed to pick up wonderful bargains. That is, he thought they were wonderful, but his wife did not always agree with him.

Mrs Beverly Jones did not share her husband's craze She had it in a modified form when she first married, but as the house began to fill with all kinds of old furniture, Mrs. Jones' love for old pieces began to cool, and she set her wits to work to solve the problem of how to cure him of his fad. She stored the furniture in the attic, but still it accumulated

Once, without consulting Mr. Jones, she called in a dealer and sold a lot of what she considered the least valuable stuff. She calculated that her husband would not remember that he had them, much less miss them. And the event proved that she was right.

The next night he came home in high spirits.

"Hurrah, Mary," he cried, "I struck a wonderful piece of luck today. I found such a charming old sideboard, the exact duplicate of one I bought years ago. They will make a grand pair."

His wife's smile grew faint. "Yes?"

"Yes, and some beautiful chairs, almost the same pattern. I always wanted some of the sort. They will just match. It was a fine piece of good luck."

"Yes?"

"Yes. And the dearest little work table. I'm sure you'll be delighted with it. I've always meant to get something of the kind for you, but, somehow, I never could find anything I specially liked. I've bought work tables before, but nothing as well built as this piece."

"Beverly Jones," asked his wife plemnly, "Where did you buy those [illegible]s of furniture?"

wife's tones looked alarmed at his was at Wa[illegible]"Why—" he hesitated. "It he knew his w[illegible] Hoyt's—I think—" from her expressio[illegible]liked the place, Walker & Hoyt's. Whose, it was at Mary?" [illegible]s matter,

"Do you know what you hav[illegible] buying, at some outrageous price, be[illegible]erly Jones?" demanded his wife.

"But what's the use? The real antique lover is never cured, and of course Beverly Jones wasn't.

Mr. Meekton's Mean Idea.

"Why did you insist on having your wife join the Suffragette Club?" "Because," replied Mr. Meekton grimly, "I want to see that Suffragette Club get all the trouble that's coming to it."

PROUD OF HIS SELF-CONTROL

Mrs. Brown Could Agree With Her Liege Lord, Too, That It Was Something Uncommon.

Mr. Brown was excitable by nature, but he often prided himself audibly upon his self-control. One night while the family were gathered at the tea table the chimney began to roar; the furnace draft had been opened and forgotten. Straightway a panic ensued.

"Don't lose your heads—keep cool!" cried Mr. Brown. "It's nothing serious."

He dashed up the stairs, discovered that the metal cap over the only unused stovepipe hole was already red hot, and dashed down again faster than he went up.

"K-keep cool!" he gasped, as he passed through the room where the family had gathered in nervous apprehension "I'll be back in a minute."

He was back in less than that time, having observed that the flames were spouting several feet high from the chimney, and that a shower of sparks was falling upon the roof.

"Wh-where's the step-ladder?" he panted.

He was gone before anyone could answer the question, and presently was heard bellowing from the roof of the woodshed. He presented an heroic figure in the glare of the blazing chimney.

"I've got one end of the hose!" he called. "Some one attach the other end and turn on the water—quick!"

Two long minutes passed.

"Why doesn't some one do as I ordered?" he thundered. "Do you want the place to burn up?"

"We can't, Henry!" called Mrs. Brown, tremblingly. "You haven't got the hose—you've got the cow-rope. It was hanging next to the hose in the shed. And anyway, the roof is covered with ice, and I don't think there's any great danger outside. You'd better go and watch the chimney from the inside."

A half-hour later the family were again at the tea table.

"If this had happened in some homes," remarked Mr Brown, "the family would have lost their heads completely and sent in an alarm. Self-control is an excellent thing—and far from common."

"Indeed it is!" agreed Mrs. Brown, emphatically.—Youth's Companion.

BASEBALL FOR THE FARMER

Possibly the Game Might Be of Benefit to Him, But It Is Hardly Indispensable.

Baseball never has been regarded exclusively as a city product. While it is true that the cities supply the enormous crowds that support the big leagues, it is equally true that many of the players in those leagues are graduates of the "bush" leagues. The country boy has an equal chance with the city boy to win the high honors and generous emoluments of a successful ball player. The farmer himself has not come directly in touch with the national game, perhaps, except on a rare holiday. A professor in the Kansas State Agricultural college calls this a mistake. Familiarity with the game, he believes, would promote success in agriculture. If the farmer would play ball "it would take the shamble out of his walk" and "make him decide quickly." This is an interesting theory, but it will not be universally accepted. Some will contend that the motor car has already taken [illegible]amble" out of the farmer's [illegible]ing a highs will insist that hand[illegible] a load of hay or[illegible] horse or [illegible] thunderstorm is gath[illegible]wagon while a [illegible] derstorm is gathwagon while a thunderstorm is just as valuable in training his mental faculties to quick action.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Rose Culture in Bulgaria.

White and red roses are grown, the former being easier to cultivate, but giving only about half as much oil of an inferior quality. The individual growers distil their own oil. Twelve to fifteen kilos of roses are distilled with 60 kilos of water until 12 kilos of distillate are obtained; eight to ten such lots are then united, and redistilled into long necked flasks, in which the oil separates on standing. To produce one kilo of oil requires 3,000 kilos of roses of 1,200,000 flowers. The roses are gathered in the early morning and distilled the same day The pure oil from the various districts shows variations in odor and physical properties, and is therefore skillfully blended by the distributing houses before sale. Adulteration is very largely carried on by the peasants, who use ginger grass oil, palma rosa oil, geranium oil, etc. The production for 1910 was 3,145 kilos.—The Pharmaceutical Era.

We Are Creatures of Habit.

There was no rush at the moment and the ticket chopper had time to talk to the man waiting for a friend in a subway station. "Yes, we see lots of queer people here," he said, "and we have nearly the same people every day and at the same hour. I know men who do not vary a minute in a week in their reaching the ticket box. The queerest man we have at this station we call 'the whistler.' Every morning at 7:20 he drops his ticket in the box and he always whistles. That wouldn't be so funny, but for years it has always been the same tune. We all know the tune, but no one knows the song. His ticket goes in the box at the same note every morning, and then he walks to the third post, opens his paper and whistles till the train comes."—New York Tribune.

He Knew.

"What happens," shouted the candidate, "when you put the almighty dollar before the man?" "The man goes after it," answered the old farmer in the front row.

Literally True.

"Say, Chimple, wot's a suffragette?" "A suffragette's a woman who wants a chance to knock the stuffing out of the ballot-box."—Judge.

Hadn't Done So Badly.

"I might have married a millionaire," declared Everywoman. "One of my old schoolmates is now one." "And several of your schoolmates are working right in this town for $10 a week," retorted Everyman, "while one of them is in jail. I guess in marrying a chap getting $1,500 a year your average is fairly good." And then Everybaby set up a howl and they had to stop quarreling to attend to him.—Pittsburg Post.

Concrete an Old Story.

Rome was not built in a day, nor built as fast as Tammanytown, nor built in structural steel, but it turns out that most of Rome's mighty structures, temples, circuses, baths, aqueducts, were built in concrete, not reinforced with iron and steel, as we build now, but a good quality of sand, stone and cement nevertheless. On this powerful central core of cement was fitted an ornamental facing of finest marble.

His Version.

At an examination held in a junior school a composition on cats was set. One young hopeful wrote the following: "Cats that's made for little boys and girls to maul is called "Maltese" cats. Some cats are known by their queer purr; these are called "Purrsian" cats. Others with very bad tempers are known as "Angorie" cats. Cats with deep feelings are called "Feline" cats. Very fine cats are called "Magnificats."

Cultivate Sense of Humor.

A sense of humor is certainly the salt of life, either of the married variety or the plain, single existence. It certainly helps a wife to laugh off many a little bruise that otherwise would grow into a festering sore. To see the funny side of many of the trivial annoyances of life at the time they happen certainly eases the situation.

Constanza, which has sprung into fame as a city of refuge for the Daily Chronicle war correspondent in flight from the Turkish censor, is an important marine asset for Roumania. It was also a place of interest in Roman days. Trajan's wall ran down to the outskirts of the town, which had another name then, and afterward became Kustenji. But the office window will rather care to note that Ovid in his banishment used to seek his recreation in the society supplied by the few distinguished compatriots settled by the little harbor on the Black sea. It is not an unpleasant place just now, for the autumn lasts agreeably into the middle of November. Ovid's complaints of Tomi seem somewhat exaggerated.

Willing to Compromise.

"I want to marry your daughter," said the timid young man.

"Are you economical?" asked the father.

"Oh, yes; I have run an auto." for a year on about sixty his thing?

"Can't you compromise chauffeur." I'd like to hire you

SAW THINGS IN A NEW LIGHT

Factory Proprietor Brought to Realize Value of Sanitary Surroundings for His Workpeople.

Scott Nearing tells in his book, Social Religion, about a factory inspector who insisted that the owner of the factory whitewash the inside of the building.

"'Whitewash this factory,' stormed the owner. 'Why, I can't afford it; it will cost me $1,500!'

"'You will obey my order, or I'll swear out a warrant,' said the inspector.

"The building was whitewashed. On his next visit, six months later, the owner greeted the inspector cordially.

"'You remember the row we had about the whitewash?'

"'Yes, indeed.'

"'Well, sir, that $1,500 was the best money I ever laid out. The building hadn't been touched for ten years, and the whitewash makes it look like— It is wonderfully cheerful and much better work that I believe already got my money comment is that every Mr. Nearing which makes a more improves pays. It is to be questioned many employers and owners of buildings would accept this statement. If a large proportion of them would, the first big advance would be made toward real social religion.—Buffalo Express.

YELLOW POWDER IN FASHION

Women of France Now Affect Complexion Showing a Suggestion of Sunburn.

This is the day of the yellow complexion in France. Gone is the fashion of the pearl white powder with which the French woman used to cover her face, achieving a peaches and cream effect or more often a chalky and interesting pallor. Now, to be really in the mode, a woman must use a yellow powder which gives the skin a slight suggestion of sunburn, a good healthy look which might have been brought back from the Swiss mountains or the Egyptian deserts.

One sees this yellow powder used everywhere, at the opera and the theater, in the drawing room and in the Bois de Boulogne, while the grisettes and the little ladies of Montmartre and St. Michelle, quick to follow the fashions, are also adopting it. There is much discussion as to how such a fashion started. The favorite explanation is that a certain professional beauty whose skin refused the pearl powder and delicate pink rouge finally resigned herself to using the yellow powder and appearing healthy and sunburned, and she looked so charming that she started the vogue of the yellow skin, which all Paris is following.

He Meant the Historian.

Comptroller Prendergast, hale and robust, with his old world air of stateliness blended with vivacity, was guiding a group of distinguished visitors through the marble splendors of the New York public library.

"Some odd incidents happen here," the comptroller said, pausing in one of the reading rooms, with its ceiling painted to represent white clouds afloat in a blue sky. "An odd incident happened yesterday.

"A young lady, after searching the card catalogue, went to the desk and said:

"'Can you tell me where I can find the details of the Jewish rebellion of A. D. 50?'

"'Consult Josephus, miss,' the attendant answered.

"'Oh, thank you,' said the young lady, and, turning to a little old man who was approaching, she began:

"'I have a question for you, Mr. Josephus!'"

NOTHING OF DIGNITY

STRENUOUS HORSE-PLAY A MARK OF THE HOLI FESTIVAL.

Traveler in India Describes Peculiar Methods of Making Merry in Which Native Ruler and His Suite Indulge.

A curious childish horseplay of the Holi festival, which is celebrated annually by the maharajah of Patiala, is described by Mr. Charles Bertram.

Early in the morning I went to the club, where I found many of the guests, who were taking part in the ceremony for the first time. We were provided with a complete new suit of Hindu garments and our dressing was superintended by the maharaja's servants. We had camels, elephants and victorias provided for us. I was on an elephant in a kind of box, and we drove in procession to the palace in the native city.

We were received with great acclaim by the natives, and I was led to believe that it was to be decidedly a dignified occasion; but I was woefully distaken. The fun had not begun. Certain formalities had to be gone through before the signal was given.

We took our seats in the courtyard of the palace, at a long table that was loaded with large gilt dishes filled with different colored balls as large as oranges and filled with Holi powder. At a signal the brother of the maharaja came to the front of the table and salaamed to the prince, who took one of the balls and threw it gently across the table, striking the officer on the breast.

The ball broke and scattered the powder over his costume. Then there was a general scramble, and in less time than it takes to write, hundreds of balls were flying about, their many colored contents scattered broadcast on the crowd. Next baskets of loose powder were thrown upon us in handfuls.

It was no use to expostulate; the moment you opened your mouth somebody filled it with powder. The battle grew fast and furious, when suddenly an enormous stream of water from a fire engine drenched everybody. The colored powder became wet, and mingling together, dyed us all in brilliant variegated hues.

After this sort of thing had gone on for half an hour it ceased by mutual consent, and we returned to the private gardens of the maharajah, where we were most unceremoniously pitched into a tank of running water. I was dyed a deep scarlet all over my body, and it was fully a month before the color entirely disappeared from my face and hands.—Youth's Companion.

The weather man has promised fair weather and from the start he has made this week it is belived his word will be good. Final arrangements have been made for the greatest event of the school year by the members of the schoool committee and the Eldora Park management.

Burgess George W. Risbeck has asked his men to assist in the work of seeing that the children get on and off the cars in good shape. Committees have been appointed and today it was announced just where these committees would report.

Rev. Duty Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon to High School Class

OPPORTUNITIES MANY

Present Day Advantages for Youth of Land Declared to be Numerous

An audience composed from the congregations of nearly all of the Charleroi churches that completely filled the First Christian church listened to the baccalaureate sermon to the members of the Charleroi high school graduating class Sunday evening by Rev. E. N. Duty. Rev. Duty's subject was "The Diversity of Gifts." A well rounded program was carried out, of which music was a distinct feature.

Rev. Duty took for his text the verse, "But desire earnestly the grater gifts. And moreover a more excellent way show I unto you," from 1 Cor. 12:31. His keynote was service. This he said was to be attainable through love as the motive.

There is opportunity for the young people of today in all kinds of endeavor and it is due the young people to grasp their opportunities according to the argument of Rev. Duty. Much thought should be given to the choice of a profession. In part Rev. Duty said:

"Make a thoughtful introspection and restrospection of your life that you may understand the adaptability for your choice. Study your life and liking. I admonish you young people to know your life's vocation before entering upon your college or university career.

"Become in love with your work. To succeed you must be in love with your work. Love is the motive in choosing. The more excellent way is the way of love and if one chooses through this motive the greater gifts will be sought. Choose not because of financial renumeration but value your choice by the amount of service you can render unto humanity and unto your God. It is far better to work at some thing that not only gives you a livelihood, but serves and aids mankind. The great demand of today is for heroic service.

"Having made our choice we must submit ourselves to our life's speciality. There is no turning back. Life time is preparation time. A symmetrical life is one of the greatest needs of the time. Man is his own architect and it is essential for him to play for a symmetrical life as the architect to plan for his building."

Rev. Duty paid attention to the physical development of a life, which he declared should be similarly given to the mental development. He said he was an enthusiastist for physical culture, but stood above all for spiritual and soul-culture, which is the highest development. He repeated the famous poem by J. G. Holland which is a demand for liberty-loving, civic-spirited, broad-minded men.

In closing, Rev. Duty said: "Young ladies and gentlemen of this graduating class, this is your commencement. Look not upon it as the finishing of your life's preparation for work. It is your beginning. It

FRANK ARRISON.

By the death of Frank Arrison Charleroi not only loses a young man of splendid attainments and a promising career, but the community is bereft of a life that was an example and an inspiration to right living on the part of all young men While not a prodigy of unusually brilliant intellectual attainments that would mark him for distinction far above his fellows, he was a type of the modest and unassuming young man who lived cleanly, performed his everyday duties unflinchingly, with a deep sense of obligation to his fellow men This is the force that is needed above all others in advancing the progress of civilization and on which society must depend to work out its ultimate destiny.

Frank Arrison was what every young man ought to be—what every young man can be. He had character, integrity, a fine sense of honor and a deep appreciation of the obligations he owed to society and to his Creator. With the courage of his convictions he went ahead and did his duty as he saw it. Not of the goody-good type, he was nevertheless good in the sense that he did right for right's sake, and believed profoundly in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He was active in the interests of good citizenship, and stood for clean politics, and in that capacity performed a signal service for the community. It is this type of young men on which the regenration of society depends, and the attainments are within the reach of every high school boy who is starting out in his career. No matter what handicaps a young man may have, he can live cleanly, do his duty and aid in the promotion of good citizenship. With these attainments the door of opportunity is sure to open to him sooner or later.

CONVICTION AND COURAGE.

Boies Penrose, senior United States Senator from Pennsylvania, has overwhelmed his factional enemies by bringing his fixed convictions into the state and courageously declaring them to all the people. Senator Penrose is a firm believer in the principles and policies of the Republican party. He believes, as firmly as any man in America, that protection to the industries of the country means progress and prosperity to the wage-earner and the wage-payer alike. He believes that the success of his party is paramount to the advancement of any individual in it, and he relies on party organization to promote the principles and policies in which he so firmly believes

In a speech before both the senate and the lower house at Harrisburg the other day Senator Penrose heartily congratulated the law-makers on their progress. He reviewed the laws now on the statute books and discussed the laws being made at the pending session, and he aroused a feeling of that sincere pride in the state which for the past several years has been trampled underfoot by those who would sacrifice party, prosperity and the best interests of the commonwealth for individual place and power

Senator Penrose contended that party harmony means party success and the success of the Republican party, he argued, was the surest way to advance the material interests [illegible] Penrose went to the Pennsylvania legislature he gratified his friends and confounded those who would undo him politically a who ever cost to the state

When word was received the other day that Secretary McAdoo had ordered a change in the new nickel there was comment made in many quarters that a reform in the method of coin selection would be found generally beneficial, says the New York Sun The change the secretary decided upon was the more clearly defining of the words "five cents," which he feared would become rubbed off in use and lead to confusion and perhaps loss.

It is a noteworthy fact that in the issuance of our money the design and the time and method of change are left to individuals. It is pointed out that in so important a matter as the choice and general manipulation of a nation's currency the selection should be left to the people themselves and not to the taste or the dictum of one or two officials.

In the past there has been a change in the currency almost with every chang in Administration It has been either a new bill or a new coin. Little effort has been made to ascertain whether the people were dissatisfied with their money in whole or in part. When the head of the [illegible] ment concluded it time to get busy with a few old or new coin the thing was done

Take the case of the old nickel—the one in use before the current coin There was nothing the matter with it But a new nickel was issued. The designers forgot to put the word "cents" on it It was promptly gilded and thousands were gulled into believing it a five dollar gold piece. It had to be changed and the word "cents" added All this costs money, when the old nickel fulfilled every requirement.

The confidnce that goes with an undeviating quality of coinage is always a na one closing the masses of people get used to a certain coin and they feel a kinship with it

The proposed issuance of new currency bills of a different size from the present bills means a great deal of inconvenience for years. There will be two sizes of bills, and in rolling and carrying, compactness and ready counting will suffer. It will be a long time before the old bills will be replaced by the new, so that in effect the country will have to put up with all the disadvantages of a sort of double currency system.

CHARLEROI WINS GAME WITH EASE

Fayette Citians Swamped in Struggle at Ball Ground Saturday

FINAL SCORE 11 TO 2

The Charleroi Independents had no trouble swamping the Fayette City Independents on Saturday afternoon by the awful score of 11 to 2 Brightwell started to hurl for Fayette City and hurled for five innings and a part of the sixth when he walked with leaden footsteps from the box to give T Parks a chance to get his benders and shoots slaughtered.

The scoring started in the very first inning, Mathers being the first person to tally. Three runs came in on as many hits. The fourth, fifth and sixth were scoring innings, and after that Charleroi quit, more for convenience to themselves than for any feeling for Fayette City

In spite of the whaling big score there were bright features in the struggle "Hooks" Urben pulled off a sensational play that would have done credit to any "Honus" Wagner or Ty Cobb Brightwell banged the ball for what looked good for a hefty Texas leaguer over Urben's head. Urben awaited with anxiety the coming of the whizzer. Then making a high jump the equal of which was not seen in any of the Saturday field meets he stabbed the ball with his gloved left hand and stuck to it. Roll played a good game at third base, and at the bat was the best there was on the field. He manipulated three hits for a total of six bases, and each time brought in a run. The Charleroi team played well though the lineup was an unusual one. The core:

CHOOSE LIFEWORK IS ADVICE TO GRADUATES

the time when you cast your lot into the world of activities and begin to fight life's battles During your high school days even the hard and heavy tasks have overtaken you, you have gone to your professors and they have given you aid to put you again upon solid rock, but now as you go out into the world, you will be alone, there will be no precedent to guide you, or sustain you It will depend upon how you have spent these days of preparation and if all will be well with you but if not, it will be a rough road to travel.

"May God bless the members of class of 1913 as you go out separately into life and may each of you leave your footprints upon the sands of time' because you desired earnestly the greater gifts and have sought the more excellent way."

The invocation was said by Rev T E Wilson of St James A M E church, the scripture lesson was read by Rev C P Bastian, of Christ Lutheran church and Rev John R Burson, of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church said the prayer. Rev J. E. Charles, pastor of the French Presbyterian church offered the offertory prayer. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J T Hackett of the First Presbyterian church.

Under direction of Prof. I T. Daniel, the Christian church chorus choir rendered three beautiful anthems. A male quartet composed of three singers from California and Prof. Daniel sang two selections. A soprano and tenor duet was rendered by Miss Ethel Barth and Warrer Kinder.

SOUSLIN SEEMS ALMOST TO HAVE CHARMED LIFE

Alonzo Souslin, of Dayton, O., who is probably the only man who travels, walks and talks with a broken neck, is in Charleroi this week. By means of what the surgeons call a jury mast Mr. Souslin is enabled to supply the place of the broken vertebrae, and in that manner is enabled to travel about [illegible] his [illegible] child, who are dependent upon him.

As previously stated Mr. Souslin, who is 52 years old has had a varied career, as well as more than his share of hard luck and the misfortunes that are the common lot of man.

He was born on a farm, was 12 years a railroad trainman, three years a sailor and has wrought as a boiler-maker, painter, decorator, carpenter, coal hauler and ditch-digger.

His Only Support.

Once he had three ribs broken; later was afflicted with locomotar ataxit, typhoid fever, rupteure of sciatic nerves and right leg broken

The culminating misfortune however, came on October 2?, 1906, at Dayton, when a heavy plank fell on Mr. Souslin while he was at work and broke the vertebrae of his neck. Contrary to all precedent he lived, and by artificial support for his broken neck he has since been able to go about and support his family. There are probably few known cases in the civilized world where a man so terribly handicapped is performing a similar service and in this respect Mr Souslin affords a striking example of fortitude and optimism.

Fishes Phone Their Presence.

A German professor has obtained a patent for the catching of fish by means of the telephone. It is stated that fish, when swimming, emit certain sounds which can be detected by the telephone. The inventor's apparatus consists of a telephone receiver and a detonator, which are sunk in the water and connected by wires to a post of observation on the river bank. When fish in any number pass the receiver a sound is heard by the watcher, who has only to press a button to explode the detonator.

HOBO'S CLOSE SHAVE

TRAMP ACKNOWLEDGES OWING LIFE TO SLIGHT MISHAP.

Had His Hat Not Blown Off at Just That Moment He Would Have Gone to Death With His Fellow Wanderer.

"I have had some very narrow escapes in my life, said the reformed hobo, 'but none of them can hold a candle to one that happened down in Texas

"It was the endup of a very strenuous week which began with a fire in a lodging house in San Antonio where I had to get out with less than half of my then very scanty wardrobe I had to get out of a window on the fourth floor at that, and the fire ladder was a trifle short. I had to hang by my hands from the window sill and as I dropped a fireman caught me between the ladder and the building and then half carried me down to safety

'Two days later I was one of the last they dug out from under the trucks and debris of a baggage car and with no bones broken and few bruises worth mentioning The next day I got arrested for walking across a railroad bridge, but they let me go when I explained I wasn't trying to avoid paying toll on the highway bridge, but had to take the railroad bridge because I was broke

"After being released I started out on foot until I came to a water tank. There I was hailed by another hobo, who happened to be a big black fellow, bigger I imagine than Jack John ſon. He said he was waiting for the blind baggage express, was going to ride the with him and wanted me to go 60 miles before company It was full and I would be a next stop, he said.

"It had cleared up to walk very heavy rain, but the little from a some very black clouds on are still zon and it looked like another bori to come later I consented to wait for the express, and shortly before it arrived at the tank the wind began to blow terribly. The express arrived and the black fellow made it all right, but my hat blew off in my rush to make the blind baggage and it was a case of losing the hat or the train and I chose the latter

"The storm that broke loose a few minutes later was the worst I ever saw, and it lasted for half an hour. The water tank was no protection, so I got soaked through, and after the storm was over I started to walk the track. I was wet and cold and had to do it to keep from becoming completely numbed The moon came up a little later in a clear sky.

"After I had walked about five miles in the moonlight my foottripped over something that gave me the horrors It was the negro's body. He had undoubtedly been unable to retain his hold and had been blown off the train in the midst of that terrible storm If my hat hadn't blown off as it did when I was about to join the negro on the blind baggage I certainly would have been blown to Kingdom Come, too"

WHEN MRS. JONES GAVE UP

She Knows Now, Though She Didn't Before, That Beverly Jones Had an Incurable Case.

Beverly Jones had a passion for antiques and having money enough to indulge it, he spent his time haunting second hand furniture shops, where he managed to pick up wonderful bargains That is, he thought they were wonderful but his wife did not always agree with him

Mrs Beverly Jones did not share her husband's craze She had it in a modified form when she first married but as the house began to fill with all kinds of old furniture, Mrs Jones love for old pieces began to cool and she set her wits to work to solve the problem of how to cure him of his fad She stored the furniture in the attic, but still it accumulated

Once, without consulting Mr Jones, she called in a dealer and sold a lot of what she considered the least valuable stuff She calculated that her husband would not remember that he had them much less miss them And the event proved that she was right.

The next night he came home in high spirits

"Hurrah Mary," he cried, 'I struck a wonderful piece of luck today. I found such a charming old sideboard, the exact duplicate of one I bought years ago They will make a grand pair'

His wife's smile grew faint. "Yes?"

"Yes, and some beautiful chairs, almost the same pattern I always wanted some of the sort They will just match. It was a fine piece of good luck."

"Yes?"

'Yes And the dearest little work table I'm sure you'll be delighted with it I've always meant to get something of the kind for you, but, somehow, I never could find anything I specially liked I've bought work tables before, but nothing as well built as this piece"

"Beverly Jones," asked his wife plemnly, "Where did you buy those lot of furniture?"

wife's tones looked alarmed at his was at Walt Why—" he hesitated "It he knew his was Hoyt's—I think—" from her expressionliked the place, Walker & Hoyt's Wasn't it was at Mary?" a matter,

"Do you know what you have buying, at some outrageous price, beverly Jones?' demanded his wife

"But what's the use? The real antique lover is never cured, and of course Beverly Jones wasn't.

Mr. Meekton's Mean Idea.

"Why did you insist on having your wife join the Suffragette Club?" "Because," replied Mr Meekton grimly. "I want to see that Suffragette Club get all the trouble that's coming to it."

PROUD OF HIS SELF-CONTROL

Mrs. Brown Could Agree With Her Liege Lord, Too, That It Was Something Uncommon.

Mr. Brown was excitable by nature, but he often prided himself audibly upon his self-control. One night while the family were gathered at the tea table the chimney began to roar; the furnace draft had been opened and forgotten. Straightway a panic ensued.

"Don't lose your heads—keep cool!" cried Mr Brown. "It's nothing serious"

He dashed up the stairs, discovered that the metal cap over the only unused stovepipe hole was already red hot, and dashed down again faster than he went up

"K-keep cool!" he gasped, as he passed through the room where the family had gathered in nervous apprehension "I'll be back in a minute."

He was back in less than that time, having observed that the flames were spouting several feet high from the chimney, and that a shower of sparks was falling upon the roof.

"Where's the step-ladder?" he panted

He was gone before anyone could answer the question, and presently was heard bellowing from the roof of the woodshed He presented an heroic figure in the glare of the blazing chimney

I've got one end of the hose!" he called Some one attach the other end and turn on the water—quick!"

Two long minutes passed

'Why doesn't some one do as I ordered?' he thundered. "Do you want the place to burn up?"

"We can't, Henry'" called Mrs. Brown, tremblingly 'You haven't got the hose—you've got the coverope It was hanging next to the hose in the shed And anyway, the roof is covered with ice, and I don't think there's any great danger outside You'd better go and watch the chimney from the inside"

A half hour later the family were again at the tea table

"If this had happened in some homes," remarked Mr Brown, "the family would have lost their heads completely and sent in an alarm Self-control is an excellent thing—and far from common"

"Indeed it is!" agreed Mrs Brown, emphatically—Youth's Companion

BASEBALL FOR THE FARMER

Possibly the Game Might Be of Benefit to Him, But It Is Hardly Indispensable.

Baseball never has been regarded exclusively as a city product While it is true that the cities supply the enormous crowds that support the big leagues, it is equally true that many of the players in those leagues are graduates of the "bush" leagues The country boy has an equal chance with the city boy to win the high honors and generous emoluments of a successful ball player The farmer himself has not come directly in touch with the national game, perhaps, except on a rare holiday A professor in the Kansas State Agricultural college calls this a mistake Familiarity with the game, he believes, would promote success in agriculture If the farmer would play ball "it would take the shamble out of his walk" and "make him decide quickly" This is an interesting theory, but it will not be universally accepted Some will contend that the motor car has already taken the walk "shamble" Out of the farmer's ling a higars will insist that hand- a load of hay or plted horse or p- ing wagon while a thunderstorm is gath- is just as valuable in training his al faculties to quick action.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Rose Culture in Bulgaria.

White and red roses are grown, the former being easier to cultivate, but giving only about half as much oil of an inferior quality. The individual growers distil their own oil. Twelve to fifteen kilos of roses are distilled with 60 kilos of water until 12 kilos of distillate are obtained, eight to ten such lots are then united, and redistilled into long necked flasks, in which the oil separates on standing. To produce one kilo of oil requires 3,000 kilos of roses of 1,200,000 flowers The roses are gathered in the early morning and distilled the same day The pure oil from the various districts shows variations in odor and physical properties, and is therefore skillfully blended by the distributing houses before sale Adulteration is very largely carried on by the peasants, who use ginger grass oil, palma rosa oil, geranium oil, etc. The production for 1910 was 3,148 kilos.—The Pharmaceutical Era.

We Are Creatures of Habit.

There was no rush at the moment and the ticket chopper had time to talk to the man waiting for a friend in a subway station "Yes, we see lots of queer people here," he said, "and we have nearly the same people every day and at the same hour. I know men who do not vary a minute in a week in their reaching the ticket this station we call 'the whistler.' Every morning at 7:20 he drops his ticket in the box and he always whistles. That wouldn't be so funny, but for years it has always been the same tune. We all know the tune, but no one knows the song. His ticket goes in the box at the same note every morning, and then he walks to the third post, opens his paper and whistles till the train comes."—New York Tribune.

He Knew.

"What happens," shouted the candidate, "when you put the almighty dollar before the man?" "The man goes after it," answered the old farmer in the front row.

Literally True.

"Say, Chimpie, wot's a suffragette?" "A suffragette's a woman who wants a chance to knock the stuffing out of the ballot-box."—Judge.

Hadn't Done So Badly.

"I might have married a millionaire," declared Everywoman. "One of my old schoolmates is now one." "And several of your schoolmates are working right in this town for $10 a week," retorted Everyman, "while one of them is in jail. I guess in marrying a chap getting $1,500 a year your average is fairly good." And then Everybaby set up a howl and they had to stop quarreling to attend to him.—Pittsburg Post.

Concrete an Old Story.

Rome was not built in a day, nor built as fast as Tammanytown, nor built in structural steel, but it turns out that most of Rome's mighty structures, temples, circuses, baths, aqueducts, were built in concrete, not reinforced with iron and steel, as we build now, but a good quality of sand, stone and cement nevertheless. On this powerful central core of cement was fitted an ornamental facing of finest marble.

His Version.

At an examination held in a junior school a composition on cats was set. One young hopeful wrote the following: "Cats that's made for little boys and girls to maul is called "Maltese" cats. Some cats are known by their queer purr; these are called "Purrsian" cats. Others with very bad tempers are known as "Angorie" cats. Cats with deep feelings are called "Feline" cats. Very fine cats are called "Magnificats."

Cultivate Sense of Humor.

A sense of humor is certainly the salt of life, either of the married variety or the plain, single existence. It certainly helps a wife to laugh off many a little bruise that otherwise would grow into a festering sore. To see the funny side of many of the trivial annoyances of life at the time they happen certainly eases the situation.

Constanza, which has sprung into fame as a city of refuge for the Daily Chronicle war correspondent in flight from the Turkish censor, is an important marine asset for Roumania. It was also a place of interest in Roman days. Trajan's wall ran down to the outskirts of the town, which had another name then, and afterward became Kustenji. But the office window will rather care to note that Ovid in his banishment used to seek his recreation in the society supplied by the few distinguished compatriots settled by the little harbor on the Black sea. It is not an unpleasant place just now, for the autumn lasts agreeably into the middle of November. Ovid's complaints of Tomi seem somewhat exaggerated.

Willing to Compromise.

"I want to marry your daughter," said the timid young man.

"Are you economical?" asked the father.

"Oh, yes; I have run an auto for a year on about sixty dollars."

"Can't you compromise by chauffeur. I'd like to hire you."

SAW THINGS IN A NEW LIGHT

Factory Proprietor Brought to Realize Value of Sanitary Surroundings for His Workpeople.

Scott Nearing tells in his book, Social Religion, about a factory inspector who insisted that the owner of the factory whitewash the inside of the building.

"'Whitewash this factory,' stormed the owner. 'Why, I can't afford it; it will cost me $1,500!'

"'You will obey my order, or I'll swear out a warrant,' said the inspector.

"The building was whitewashed. On his next visit, six months later, the owner greeted the inspector cordially.

"'You remember the row we had about the whitewash?'

"'Yes, indeed.'

"'Well, sir, that $1,500 was the best money I ever laid out. The building hadn't been touched for ten years, and the whitewash makes it look like—It is wonderfully cheerful and much better work that I believe already got my money's worth.' Comment is that every Mr. Nearing which makes a more improves pays. It is to be questionable many employers and owners of buildings would accept this statement. If a large proportion of them would, the first big advance would be made toward real social religion.—Buffalo Express.

YELLOW POWDER IN FASHION

Women of France Now Affect Complexion Showing a Suggestion of Sunburn.

This is the day of the yellow complexion in France. Gone is the fashion of the pearl white powder with which the French woman used to cover her face, achieving a peaches and cream effect or more often a chalky and interesting pallor. Now, to be really in the mode, a woman must use a yellow powder which gives the skin a slight suggestion of sunburn, a good healthy look which might have been brought back from the Swiss mountains or the Egyptian deserts.

One sees this yellow powder used everywhere, at the opera and the theater, in the drawing room and in the Bois de Boulogne, while the grisettes and the little ladies of Montmartre and St. Michelle, quick to follow the fashions, are also adopting it. There is much discussion as to how such a fashion started. The favorite explanation is that a certain professional beauty whose skin refused the pearl powder and delicate pink rouge finally resigned herself to using the yellow powder and appearing healthy and sunburned, and she looked so charming that she started the vogue of the yellow skin, which all Paris is following.

He Meant the Historian.

Comptroller Prendergast, hale and robust, with his old world air of stateliness blended with vivacity, was guiding a group of distinguished visitors through the marble splendors of the New York public library.

"Some odd incidents happen here," the comptroller said, pausing in one of the reading rooms, with its ceiling painted to represent white clouds afloat in a blue sky. "An odd incident happened yesterday.

"A young lady, after searching the card catalogue, went to the desk and said:

"'Can you tell me where I can find the details of the Jewish rebellion of A. D. 50?'

"'Consult Josephus, miss,' the attendant answered.

"'Oh, thank you,' said the young lady, and, turning to a little old man who was approaching, she began:

"'I have a question for you, Mr. Josephus!'"

NOTHING OF DIGNITY

STRENUOUS HORSE-PLAY A MARK OF THE HOLI FESTIVAL.

Traveler in India Describes Peculiar Methods of Making Merry in Which Native Ruler and His Suite Indulge.

A curious childish horseplay of the Holi festival, which is celebrated annually by the maharajah of Patiala, is described by Mr. Charles Bertram.

Early in the morning I went to the club, where I found many of the guests, who were taking part in the ceremony for the first time. We were provided with complete new suit of Hindu garments and our dressing was superintended by the maharaja's servants. We had camels, elephants and victorias provided for us. I was on an elephant in a kind of box, and we drove in procession to the palace in the native city.

We were received with great acclaim by the natives, and I was led to believe that it was to be decidedly a dignified occasion; but I was woefully distaken. The fun had not begun. Certain formalities had to be gone through before the signal was given.

We took our seats in the courtyard of the palace, at a long table that was loaded with large gilt dishes filled with different colored balls as large as oranges and filled with Holi powder. At a signal the brother of the maharaja came to the front of the table and salaamed to the prince, who took one of the balls and threw it gently across the table, striking the officer on the breast.

The ball broke and scattered the powder over his costume. Then there was a general scramble, and in less time than it takes to write, hundreds of balls were flying about, their many colored contents scattered broadcast on the crowd. Next baskets of loose powder were thrown upon us in handfuls.

It was no use to expostulate; the moment you opened your mouth somebody filled it with powder. The battle grew fast and furious, when suddenly an enormous stream of water from a fire engine drenched everybody. The colored powder became wet, and mingling together, dyed us all in brilliant variegated hues.

After this sort of thing had gone on for half an hour it ceased by mutual consent, and we returned to the private gardens of the maharajah, where we were most unceremoniously pitched into a tank of running water.
